KELLY WINNER IN FIRST CASE

Insurance Action In Supreme Court Enlivened By Mrs. Kelly's Description Of Husband's Fistic Prowess—But Kelly Blacked His Eye And Fall Broke "Crupper Bone."

The jury in the case of Hubert Kelly against the Home Mutual Fire Insurance Company and others, which was on trial in the supreme court for the past three days, came in court this morning and returned a sealed verdict which was in favor of the plaintiff in the sum of $500, with interest from October 22, 1918, amounting to $88.

The case went to the jury late Thursday afternoon and a verdict was agreed to at eleven o'clock in the evening. Judge Hasbrouck submitted to the jury the amount of damages for which they could find a verdict, which could not be in excess of $300. The insurance on the Kelly property amounted to $7,000 but was pro-rated among nine companies. There are eight others still pending.

A motion to set aside the verdict was denied and the usual stay was granted in lieu of appeal.

Mrs. Catherine Kelly was one of the witnesses called in the case on Thursday and proved one of the most entertaining witnesses who has been heard in court in a long time. She lives in New York city but owns several properties in the town of Wawarsing, one of which she allowed Mrs. Kelly, wife of the plaintiff in the action, to occupy after Mr. and Mrs. Kelly had become divorced. The Riley property which was occupied by Mrs. Kelly was used by her as a boarding house and Kelly took his meals there after he and his wife separated.

Mrs. Kelly said she was friendly both to Mr. and Mrs. Kelly. Her husband, James W. Kelly, also was a friend of Kelly, she said, but she admitted they had had some difficulties. The occasion of these difficulties, she said, was on a visit which Kelly and Kelly made to Ellenville in pre-Prohibition days, and she believed Kelly was intoxicated. In fact, Kelly had hit Kelly in one eye, not in both eyes as the attorneys in the case had understood, but she wanted it distinctly understood that "Jimmy" as she affectionately called her husband, "could lick any man in the state of New York," and she was proud of him.

Mrs. Kelly denied vehemently that "Jimmy" had been laid up for two weeks as a result of his encounter with Kelly. Nothing of the kind occurred, she said. In fact, she explained, "Jimmy" came home intoxicated. He wanted to go outdoors but made a mistake in doors and instead of going outdoors he landed in the cellar. "He broke his crupper bone, if you know what that is, and that is what laid him up," she explained.

John R. DeVany tried the case for Kelly with LeRoy Lounsbury of Ellenville and Judge John G. Van Etten of Kingston, of counsel; Mrs. W. J. Mills of Albany represented the insurance company with Judge James Jenkins of this city, of counsel.

"FLEE TO HURLEY."

British Sacked And Burned Kingston 144 Years Ago.

One hundred and forty-four years ago, on October 14, 1777, the British under General Vaughn came up the Hudson river and landing at what is now the lower part of the city, proceeded to destroy everything in their path until they came to the village of Kingston, which they burned. Only men too old to fight, women and children were in the village at the time and they were defenseless. All the able-bodied men were at the front, fighting for freedom and their homes. It was left to the women to guard and protect their homes and all their worldly goods. But they were helpless against the advance of the ruthless foe and were obliged to flee to save their lives, carrying what they could besides their children. Some of these women left their household treasures to the flames in order to save valuable state papers. They suffered hardships untold, but suffered bravely. It was to commemorate the courage of these women that Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., chose the 14th of October as their Chapter Day and they observe the anniversary each year in some way. For many years the chapter and its friends were invited to "flee to Hurley."

This year there will be just a family party at the Chapter House, on Saturday afternoon, October 16, at 2:30 o'clock with the usual arrangements of a social afternoon of cards and games. A short program at 4:30 p. m. and refreshments afterwards.

To Editor's Letter.

It has happened many times during the past few or twelve years that the editor of the Independent has been told that he looked like Eliza Root, whom, by the way, we never met nor even saw. Something a little more decided in this respect appeared at the meeting of the Historical Society at Lake George last week, when President Slingerland was asked to read a paper on Eliza Root and that we were Eliza Root.—New York Independent.

KIWANIS LOSES VALUED MEMBER

The weekly meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club took the form of a farewell party for "Bill" Rivenburg, of the gas company, who leaves shortly to accept a position in Kingston, Pa., where his opportunities will be greater than here. The meeting was held in the evening at Pessenar's Hotel. "Bill" was compelled to sit around and listen to yards and yards of praise, with here and there a little "razzing" about service charges and other devices by which gas companies get their money and then President Burns presented him in behalf of the club, with a black leather traveling case, and told how, when the club was formed he had taken it for granted that Rivenburg was to be president and when he, himself, was elected, it had taken Organizer Lambert's best efforts to dissuade him from resigning next day. President Burns voiced the keen regret of the club at losing Mr. Rivenburg. Sam Stern also told a lot of things about the departing one, which kept the rest of the members laughing. Sam and Bill have been neighbors for a good deal of the fourteen and a half years the latter has been climbing the ladder with the local gas company.

Mr. Rivenburg in a few well chosen words thanked the club for the evidence of the high regard in which it held him and was "honestly sorry" to sever the pleasant associations that made this city seem like home to him, and to leave his many friends here for a new field, where years must be spent in acquiring as wide and enjoyable acquaintance as he had made here.

President Burns reported briefly on the State Convention of Kiwanis Clubs held recently at Auburn, at which he and John Mack represented the local club. Four hundred and seventy-five delegates were present, including many prominent men, and it spoke well for a continuing Kiwanis spirit that some of the group conferences lasted until 5 o'clock the morning. John Mack is to report more fully at the next meeting, he having been filled so full of the subject that he wouldn't keep still long enough for Burns to get to sleep in the berth they had bought for the night, on the trip home.

"BLACK BOY" OUT OF LUCK

Is Showed With Hot Beans And Boiling Water Poured Inside Shirt By Indignant Negroes At Shandaken Tunnel Job, A Dog And More Negroes Aiding And Abetting—Fined, Harmony Meturus.

It took the best efforts of Sergeant Ocker and other members of the New York Board of Water Supply police half an hour to end a battle between a score of negroes at Shandaken Thursday afternoon. It grew out of charges of immorality against "Black Boy," a negro employed on the water works job, in which the chastity of some of the negroes was questioned, followed by denials and reiteration of the charges.

The arguments waxed hot, and a feature of the affair was that one woman sicked a dog on "Black Boy." While the dog had his teeth fastened deeply into the flesh of "Black Boy's" leg, another woman hit him over the head with a pot of hot beans, and as a negro held him another woman poured boiling water down the neck band of "Black Boy's" shirt at the back, scalding his skin badly.

Dr. Wolf the camp doctor, was called and attended to the scalds on "Black Boy's" back, and his services were also required to sew up one ear of a negro, the ear having been split open by a stone hurled during the arguments among the negroes.

Sergeant Ocker and the water supply cops arrested several of the men and women and Justice of the Peace Theodore Voss who was notified went to the police barracks where he held court, as it would have required Winne's autos to carry the party to Judge Voss's court room. Then, too, some of the women had nursing babies and it would have been a hardship to have haled them to Phoenixia. After a hearing Judge Voss imposed a fine of $5 each on two of the women and on two of the men.

After three had been fined the negroes thought that one of the women would escape being fined, but when one was imposed they were not only satisfied but they clapped in and raised the five dollars and paid the money to the court.

After the trial and imposition of the penalties the negroes went back to their shacks in good humor and seemingly bearing no malice against one another.

LANDRITH DREW BIG AUDIENCE

Dr. Ira Landrith, national extension secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, drew a big audience from all parts of the county when he addressed a union rally in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Thursday evening. In order to give their congregations the opportunity of hearing Dr. Landrith many of the city churches omitted the usual Thursday evening service.

The address was held under the auspices of the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor, and a number of Christian Endeavorers from all sections of Ulster County motored to Kingston that evening to hear Dr. Landrith, and were well repaid in hearing his stirring address on "A Warless World in 1923."

There has seldom been heard here a more forceful and interesting speaker and his topic was a timely one. He illustrated his message with a number of stories that were crisp and to the point.

RE-SURFACING COUNTY ROADS

The work of re-surfacing the Kingston-Ellenville state road, which was undertaken by the state highway department during the early summer, was completed today. The road was in bad condition after the frost went out of the ground in the spring, practically no repair work having been done on it for several years. It is now in fine condition for the entire distance.

During the time the repairs were in progress, traffic was not interrupted and it was not necessary to provide any detours.

The re-surfacing of the New Palitz-Modena road which has been in progress for some time is nearing completion. About one mile of the highway remains to be re-surfaced.

Re-surfacing of the Perrine's Bridge-New Palitz road for part of the distance has been completed. Sub-base is to be put in on certain sections and the entire road will be completed in about three weeks' time.

These roads have been repaired and re-surfaced by the maintenance department of the state highway department under the supervision of County Maintenance Superintendent Charles E. Seib.

ICE COMPANY SUING R. MAIN

Say the Ice He Put Up for Them and for Which They Paid Was Neither Cut Right Nor Stored Right—Fischer's Testimony Damaging to Main.

In the supreme court this morning the action brought by the Independent Consumers Ice Company against Robert Main was taken up for trial before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury. Maurice Hyman of New York City appeared for the plaintiff with Frank W. Brooks of this city, of counsel; Howard Chipp appeared for Mr. Main with DuBois J. Gillette, of counsel. The action is brought for breach of contract and to recover money paid on account. The plaintiff is a New York city corporation and contracted with Mr. Main for ice to supply the New York market in 1920. The ice was harvested in January, 1920, and in the following June the ice company took one large-load of ice from the ice house, which is situated at South Rondout, but refused to take any more and demanded back the money which had been paid.

According to the plaintiff, the ice was not of the size or quality contracted for. Moses Solomon, one of the officers of the company, testified as to the quality and size of the cakes of ice when they were taken from the ice house. Ex-Alderman John A. Fischer, whose hotel is on the opposite side of the creek, testified he is also in the ice business, his house being nearly opposite the house of Mr. Main. In January, 1920, he said, Mr. Main finished harvesting ice seven days after he had filled his own house, and that he noticed the ice when it was put in and was in the ice house when it was taken out. He said Mr. Main did not have a corragator to remove snow from the solid ice and that the ice was not stored properly. Merchantable ice, he said, must be at least ten inches thick, but some of the ice put in the Main house in January had been fourteen inches at one end and only six inches at the other, the reason being that the ice in the center of the creek had been broken up after it formed in order that two new barges constructed at the Daniel J. Murphy boat yard could be taken to New York City before navigation closed.

On cross-examination, Mr. Fischer said he was not on friendly terms with Mr. Main and informed Mr. Chipp, "You are responsible for it." The case was continued this afternoon.

Albany, Oct. 14.—(Special).—The Public Service Commission today authorized the Delaware & Northern Railroad by its receivers, for a period of one year and thereafter until changed by the commission, to establish a rate of fare not exceeding five cents a mile, with minimum single fare of ten cents.

The company asked permission to change its within state rates from 3.6 cents a mile to five cents. Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE WHITES.

"We fly about and aren't in the least bit proud," said the White Butterfly.

"The same is true of us," said the Orange-Tip Butterfly.

"And we aren't in the least proud, either," said the Yellow Butterfly.

"It is so silly to be proud," said the White Butterfly. "No one has any pleasure out of it. We'd much rather be about and be quite friendly and sociable."

"We don't care if we are considered rather unusual. We're glad of it."

"Gracious, children, are quite unusual and they are pleasant creatures, except when they collect us. And grown-ups, too, have collected us."

"We don't like any one to collect us. We fly about and like to be admired, but we don't like to be caught. No one would care to be caught, I'm sure."

"If we could catch people and put them in nets they wouldn't like it. Or if we could catch them and put them in hats they wouldn't like it, either. It is most dreadfully cruel."

"And as for people who ever fasten us to boxes or mats with pins, well, the cruelty of such people I cannot understand."

"How people can want to take us from the sunshine and the flowers and capture us and see our beautiful wings quite, quite still, is beyond us."

"We like to fly about in the sunshine and we like to have them care to see us."

"One doesn't want to be caught because one is admired."

"We would rather not be admired than have that happen."

"We like to be sociable and friendly. We like to be about and let people know we're glad to be about."

"But we want to be allowed to enjoy the sunshine and the flowers and the beautiful, beautiful summer days without having to struggle, and then to keep quite still because our butterfly life has gone."

"We would like to make a petition or a speech urging people not to be unkind or cruel to us."

"All the butterflies would sign it and it would read something like this: 'People, Attention! We, the butterflies of the sunny world, ask you to watch us and admire us and look at us and get to know us by name.'

"But we beg of you not to catch us and make collections of us."

"We beg you to leave us in the lovely sunshine and to let our wings be quite free."

"That is what we would like to beg of people."

"But," continued the White Butterfly, "we want to talk of something else that is more cheerful, so I don't believe we will be caught."

"People will see that we are too happy, and that it would be very unkind to hurt our little butterfly wings."

"They wouldn't want us to hold their legs so they couldn't run or skip or jump. They wouldn't like that at all. But I was going to talk of something cheerful."

"Yes," said the Orange-Tip, "we must talk of the sunshine and of the flowers. We must talk, too, of how beautiful we have become and that once we were only little greenish worms with fuzzy hair growing over us which could hardly be seen."

"And we must tell people that we all belong to the one big family of Whites. Yes, we, the Orange-Tips are cousins."

"And we are cousins, too," said the Yellow Butterfly.

"People can see lots of us all summer long," the Yellow Butterfly continued. "There are certainly plenty of us about plenty of us. And we like to fly about in the lovely sunshine."

"The sunshine keeps our yellow wings so bright and the sun keeps them polished by his wonderful Sun Ray Polish."

"Oh, yes, we're about most of the time. We're not unusual, but we're happy, gay, bright, sun-loving butterflies. We are indeed. And we hope to be gay and happy for some time to come."

Whispered Tinkled Mew.

"Why, Dorothy," said the mother of a bright little maid, "aren't you going to kiss your goodby? He will be gone a week."

"I can't wait to see him," was the reply, "for he's got spectacles in his eyes."

Do you know what fairy palaces you may build of good thoughts—Russia. "All things come to the man who goes after them."

SOME MORE EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS.

When one has a little leftover veal the following dish will be one worth considering.

Veal Stew.—Cut the remains of roast or cutlets into small morsels. Cover with cold water and cook over the simmering burner till very tender; add any remnants of gravy or of forcemeat and more seasonings if needed and bring to the boiling point. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour or less of corn starch and cook ten minutes after adding.

Dumplings.—Take one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and buttermilk to make a drop batter. Fresh milk may be used, adding a tablespoonful of butter to the flour mixture.

Potato Turnovers.—To one pint of hot mashed potato, seasoned well with salt, butter, cream and beaten egg, add one tablespoonful of flour and shape into round cakes rather thin. Place one tablespoonful of finely minced meat on top and fold over, pressing the edges together. Brush the top with egg and milk. Bake in a hot oven until well browned. Serve piping hot with Brown Sauce.—Put one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan and when brown add one tablespoonful of flour, mix and then add one cupful of hot stock with salt and pepper with onion juice if desired for seasoning. A half cupful of finely minced mushrooms will be an addition.

Cream Scones.—Take one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter well rubbed into the flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one well beaten egg and thin cream to make a mixture that will roll out, keeping it as moist as possible. Cut in diamond shapes, brush with egg, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a hot oven.

Coffee Creams.—Take one cupful each of strong coffee and thin cream, one-half cupful of milk, four eggs beaten until well mixed, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Cook in cups set in hot water, baked in a moderate oven. Serve cold. Nice with scones.

HAVE YOU REGISTERED?

Today is the first day of registration for the fall election in Kingston, and every one entitled to vote should see to it that he has performed that important duty at the earliest possible moment. Unless a voter is registered he will be unable to cast a vote at the November election. The election this fall is of supreme importance to every resident of the city for at that time Kingston voters elect their next mayor and the members of the common council who will be in charge of the city's affairs for the ensuing two years. The Republican party has placed in the field an exceptionally strong ticket from top to bottom, and these candidates deserve the support of every voter, irrespective of party affiliation. Do not delay registering until the last moment for through some unforeseen circumstance you may be unable to get to the polls in time to perform that important duty. Have you registered? If not do it at once.

AUSTRALIA'S NEED.

The firm determination of the Australians to maintain permanent bars against Asiatic immigrants was announced years ago, and Lord Northcliffe does not need to urge them to keep their island-continent a "whiteman's country." He does well to remind them, however, that unless they take pains to attract immigration from Europe and gradually populate their vacant lands the time will come when their exclusive right to possession will be questioned and the bars they have set up may be broken down by a vast and enforced overflow from cruelly overcrowded countries. History provides abundant hints for such a warning. When multitudes are driven to emigrate by hunger they are ready to fight for land on which to sow and reap and achieve humanity's natural right to the profits of labor. Australia's present thin population of five millions would be unable to turn back the human tide that one day may set in the direction of that country's undeveloped lands.

Australia would be wise to welcome all the European immigration it can secure. The United States can now afford to pick and choose and restrict, but not Australia. Millions of discouraged or poverty-stricken Europeans could be had for the asking or the assisting. Many of them might be unfitted for the task of conquering the wilderness; many might be racially or even morally undesirable. But all this would matter little half a century hence, as Australians themselves should well know, remembering that their old towns were in great part settled by transported British convicts who soon were able to take up life anew under the purifying influences of a virgin land.

In nominating Abram F. Molyneux for supervisor, Republicans of the First ward selected one of the most active young business men of the city who is well qualified to represent them in the county legislature. The First ward always has been well represented in county affairs and its important business interests require a supervisor who is able to understand its interests as well as the interests of the city at large. Mr. Molyneux is well qualified to do this. Extensive personal business interests in the ward have afforded him unusual opportunity to familiarize himself with the needs of the ward. His business has called him to practically every section of the county and has given him an intimate knowledge not only of the people but also of their wishes and their needs, which is most desirable knowledge for any legislator to possess. In election Mr. Molyneux superior to uphold the high standard of the First ward, voters will render themselves a most valuable service.

The candidacy of Robert G. Groves for supervisor in the Eighth ward should appeal to the voters of that ward regardless of partisan consideration. Mr. Groves has been intimately associated with the affairs of the ward for many years. He stands for the best traditions of city service which have been handed on to the representatives of the ward in past years. His legal training is a valuable asset to a member of the county legislature where lawyers are just as needful as in the state legislature. With Mr. Groves in the county legislature the voters of the Eighth ward will know that their interests will receive the most careful consideration and be in safe hands. At all times he can be depended on to exercise good judgment and sound common sense. His election will add strength to the county government.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do mountain sheep pair?
2. Why is it that on the east coast of Florida we find salt water drum, and fail to find them on the west coast? Is there any difference between the water of the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, that should cause this?
3. How far north does the mocking-bird go?

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Is the badger a harmful animal? No, except accidentally sometimes, when holes it tears in getting its prey, may make a dangerous place on the plains for horsesmen, their mounts stumbling into them. The badger is a foe of prairie dogs, ground squirrels, and similar rodent pests, digging them out of their holes, and it should be rigorously protected.

2. What is the water dog and is it bite considered poisonous? It is an aquatic salamander-like animal, also called mud-puppy. Has four short limbs. The hellbender of the Ohio river region is a good example. The notion of its bite being poisonous is incorrect. It is, however, a great wriggler and biter, and as its skin secretes copious slime, a fisherman trying to take a hellbender off his hook, might, if bitten, get slime in the wound and have a sore place.

How does the rain crow know it will soon rain?

We don't know "how." The creatures are sensitive to atmospheric changes, and sometimes take advantage of them, as when swallows hawk low before a storm, to catch insects also flying low. Observing certain behavior under certain conditions, we take it for a "sign." Damp weather seems to stimulate the cuckoo to loud calls. On the other hand, Linnaeus reported that fine weather stimulated the raven, in Sweden, to loud calls!

GODS WITH HORNS

How Scientists Know Period of
Idol's Make.The Tennessee Stone Image Recently Found, Evidently Was Carved Between 3000 and 1500 B. C.

"The man who dug up the stone image with horns and 24 teeth in Tennessee the other day thought he had discovered a 'devil' and most plain folk will agree with him." is the observation of a modest New Yorker who has made many journeys in search of the stone images of various kinds to the man of facts and figures, the New York Sun reports.

"There is a popular tendency to regard all idols as representations of 'devils,' born somewhat of theological insistence, but there are idols and idols just as there are devils and devils and we scientific 'idolaters' have our own way of estimating them.

"All so-called 'devils' are not mere 'sticks and stones' bowed down to by 'enlightened' heathens. That is what they become in the hands of savage and barbarous peoples, but there is a class of 'devils' which have been constructed by more or less enlightened races of the past to embody crude scientific facts that the better educated would understand, while it did not make any difference if the ignorant comprehended them or not. I am inclined to think, from the descriptions I have seen, that this Tennessee 'devil' is one of a class of objects of which there are a great many lying around over various American museums that are not very well understood, but which will one day serve to link up the probable thought and worship of prehistoric American races with those of ancient Europe and Asia.

"These objects all speak a language of their own to the scientists. It is even to suspect such an idol as being a sun god, for most all the ancient peoples worshiped the sun, but the horns make it certain. The horns also make it pretty sure that the image belongs to a period commencing B. C. 3000 and ending B. C. 1500, when the sun was in the sign of Taurus, the bull, at the spring equinox. During this period all the old gods had horns. It was the day of the bull god Osiris in Egypt, Mo'och in Phoenicia, the Minotaur in Crete, the winged bulls of Assyria and the golden calf of the rebellious Israelites. The passage of horned gods from the eastern to the western hemisphere shows also that there was communication of some kind.

"Then again we scientific 'idolaters' take note of many other things. The 24 teeth are emblematic of the 24 hours of the day. That is not a new division of time, but thousands of years old.

"Kronos or 'Saturn' was the god of time in those days and he was said to eat his own children, meaning that time eventually destroys whatever it creates. Saturn was called the 'occult sun' and a sun god combining both luminaries was called 'Bel' or 'Baal Sabao,' his name surviving both in the words 'sabbath' and 'shabbas.' 'Bel Sabao' is called Beelzebub (or Beelzebub) in the Bible and supposed to be from words meaning 'Lord of flies,' but this is not so. It explains, however, how the sun god got horns and the name 'Beelzebub,' which is the complete outfit of a perfectly bad devil, so it is no wonder that the Tennessee gentleman with the spade thought the crust of his native state was dangerously thin for folk inhabiting a moonshine country."

An Ambitious Project.

It is reported that there is in process of formation an all-British aerial transport company, which proposes to run regular services of airplanes and airships—the former daily to Paris, Brussels, and Amsterdam, and the latter twice weekly to America and Canada. The airplanes will be built entirely of metal and so designed that in case of a forced landing in the sea they will float and the passengers will not get wet. Parachutes will be fitted to the aircraft. The airships are intended to do the journey to New York in 48 hours. They will carry 30 passengers and will contain sleeping cabins, dining and smoking rooms, and a lounge, while the catering will be in charge of a chef. The crew will number 15. The inclusive fare to New York will be about $250, which is approximately the present steamship first-class fare.

Cornish Chemistry.

A new species of bacterium has been found that does remarkable things to cornucopia.

When the corns are cooked with water in a closed receptacle, at a temperature considerably above boiling point, an extract is obtained from them which, upon introduction of this "bacterium," rapidly ferments.

One ton of corn treated in this way will yield, as a result of fermentation, 30 pounds of acetic acid and 320 pounds of lactic acid, both of which are valuable commercial products.—Albion News.

Tanks as Fire Fighters.

Military tanks are being used to "tick" bush fires in England. All efforts to stop the flames over Alder shot failed until a detachment of tanks crawled out and the heat from their engines and the water and chemicals on the fire and cleared the way for the fire fighters as though they were dealing with machine gun nests in Flanders.—Scientific American.

HEALTH

BOTHER ABOUT IT

There is no need to bother about health if you have it, but if you know that something is wrong, you need to right about face, and feeling yourself and obey the impulse to find out.

The human body is a living machine having spinal parts that bear a proper mechanical relation to one another. If nerve impulses (life) are to be transmitted without interference to every organ and nerve cell, the chiropractor is able to place the spinal joints that are out of alignment and are interfering with the work of the spinal nerve lines. By chiropractic manual adjustments he restores the mechanical alignment and removes the cause of disease.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of diseases of the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and internal organs.

FUNERAL OF
PVT. NAEGELE

The funeral of Private William H. Naegle was held Thursday at 2 o'clock at the funeral parlors of A. Carr & Sons, thence to the Spring Street Lutheran Church, where a short and solemn service was held. A guard of honor from Company M in charge of Sergeant Chris Melbert, acted as bearers and as a firing squad at the interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery. The flowers were in great profusion, beauty and variety. Fred Abel and Mrs. Henry Thiel sang a duet. The Rev. A. Schmidtkoewitz in his memorial sermon spoke as follows:

For more than four fearful years, the last war swept furiously through the continent of Europe and blazed in many parts of Africa and Asia. Thirty nations and scores of different races were involved. Nearly ten million men were slain in battles, millions were injured, thousands were made blind or insane. Millions of non-combatants were slain or suffered death by starvation and disease. A great part of Europe has been devastated, the scars to remain for more than a generation. Thousands of ships were sent to the bottom.

And why all this? The rulers of Europe wanted war. They have all been ready for war. They cultivated the spirit of war. National pride and ambition, jealousy and commercial rivalry have had a great deal to do in bringing about this bloody war.

We never had anything to do with starting this war. Our country wanted to be neutral. Our government pretended to "Keep us out of war." But at last we were worked and plunged into this great conflict, and made common cause with the Allied nations, when they were in grave peril and fighting with their backs to the wall. They beseechingly turned to the United States and cried out in the agony of despair: "For God's sake, hurry to our aid. And we hurried to save them from defeat."

Two million American boys were rushed across the dangerous seas to fight in France. These men who volunteered for service in the army and navy and all who answered the call of the nation in the draft law have made great sacrifices and rendered magnificent service.

Among these brave soldiers were our Lutheran boys. We have given the very flower of Lutheran manhood to the country. It is estimated that there were 300,000 and more Lutheran men with the colors. Our own congregation had 43 young men in the service of the country and lost 6 of them.

Fully one-fourth of American boys who fought in France were of German descent and were full-blooded Americans just as much as any citizen of pure English extraction. And the millions of American citizens of German birth of descent were loyal to their country. After war was declared against Germany they laid aside their personal conviction and declared their loyalty to our government, but were often unjustly suspected.

The bloody war is over but the supreme sacrifices come home to us in increasing numbers. Thousands of our brave boys are brought home as dead heroes and thousands of families mourn their slain. It is our privilege to assemble here in honor of a brave soldier who fell in action September 29, 1918. William Naegle whose body rests in this casket is the second son of these sadly stricken parents whose life has been laid down for our country, his brother, Jacob, having died at the camp.

A memorial service in honor of our dead hero was held in our church November 23, 1919, then he was resting in foreign soil, but now we have his remains with us, and we are able to bring him to his last resting place at home. It is a sweet comfort to our sorrowing parents, brothers and sisters to have his grave with you and to have it adorned with flowers and the "Old Glory" under which he served and died.

We will never cease to honor the men who served our country. We will always honor and decorate the graves of those who laid down their lives for their country because they first decorated our nation's annals with the beauty of their devotion. We strew the graves where our heroes sleep in long rest with flowers, and as these hallowed mounds in our cemeteries increase in number we strew more flowers.

Savior brave and soldier true We will find a wreath for you. Where you lie so still and low in the land you guarded so.

After our service here we will accompany the remains to their last resting place. But will that be the end? You know that our fathers called their burial places "God's Acre." The farmer sows his wheat in the acre and, returning after a season, gathers therefrom a golden harvest.

What we are about to do today on God's acre is not the end, but merely the beginning. We believe in the resurrection of the body which perished in death. Upon this sowing follows the harvesting.

What is sown, that is raised. The very same body will be raised, that which was sown, but how gloriously changed, how wondrously transformed. "It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power."

What day that shall be, when death shall be swallowed up in victory, when comrades and friends shall meet again.

MR. BOWSER IS RUINED

And He Lays It All to Mrs. Bowser, of Course.

By M. QUAD.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I am a ruined man!" Mr. Bowser threw away his newspaper and cigar as he uttered the words. They were spoken as solemnly as a young man speaks when he asks a girl to be his wife, and she tells him to go to Texas.

Mrs. Bowser looked up, and turned a shade paler.

"Yes, I am a ruined man, and you are the cause of it!"

"Do you mean that you have gone into bankruptcy?"

"No, not exactly, but, nevertheless, you have ruined me, financially."

"Can't you pay two cents on the dollar?"

"It isn't that, but you have ruined me by ruining my prospects. What am I today? I am working my brains out, and receiving only a small income. All the best years of my life have passed away, and I have not taken advantage of the many golden opportunities held out to me. I have been thinking things all over, and I tell you, Mrs. Bowser, I feel very bitter! If I have to go into bankruptcy, it will be your fault. If we become paupers no one but you will be to blame!"

"I don't know that I have done anything to prevent you from getting on," she said in a very calm voice.

"Oh, you don't, eh! Well, we will go over the case. Some years ago I wanted to become an apple-grower. I got all the facts and figures and brought them to you. Apples were then on the rise, and have been ever since. I saw a chance to become a millionaire. I wanted to get a thousand acres of land and set out 10,000 apple trees. Each tree would have yielded me ten bushels of fruit, and I would thus have had 10,000,000 bushels to sell. I was all ready to go into it—when—when—"

"When I figured it out," interrupted Mrs. Bowser. "I figured that you hadn't a tenth of the money to buy the land with. You hadn't the tenth of the cash to buy the trees with. You couldn't have paid the men for setting them out. It was simply a wild-dream of yours."

"Never mind the wild dream!" said Mr. Bowser, with a wave of his hand. "What you term a bad dream may turn out a golden dream. I wanted to go into peach branding. It had just been discovered, and was taken up everywhere. Whisky, gin, rum, beer and all other drinks were giving way to peach brandy. Even the President of the United States kept his bottle. My aim was to get a corner on the peach crop of the United States for five years. There would be millions of bushels. There would be millions of barrels of peach brandy. I would put the price up, and hold it there. The papers would have given me the name of 'Peach Branding Bowser,' and you would have come in to share my fame, but no—no—no! You must get out pencil and paper and do some figuring! By that figuring you cost me millions!"

"Yes, I remember," answered Mrs. Bowser. "You had about $5,000 at the time."

"You had about $5,000 at the time," Mrs. Bowser.

"Never mind the poorhouse, but listen to me! There is just one chance of my recouping myself—just one chance. If you prevent me from taking this chance, nothing will be left to me but suicide. Mrs. Bowser, do you know that horseradish is selling at 25 cents a bottle, when it used to sell at five? All the doctors in the country are recommending it. It is found the greatest cure for many ailments. I want to make horseradish tinctures. I want to make them by the billion. I want to flood the whole world with them. The profit is 200 per cent. Now, then, are you going to oppose me?"

Mrs. Bowser could contain herself no longer. Her laugh was almost hysterical. Mr. Bowser looked at her and gave up all hopes. He heard her laughter and knew he was ruined forever. He left the house to suicide. It is, up to date, his body has not been found hanging from the limb of a soft maple shade tree.

"You can thank me that you are not in the poorhouse," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser.

Now, then, are you going to oppose me?"

Mrs. Bowser could contain herself no longer. Her laugh was almost hysterical. Mr. Bowser looked at her and gave up all hopes. He heard her laughter and knew he was ruined forever. He left the house to suicide. It is, up to date, his body has not been found hanging from the limb of a soft maple shade tree.

"You can thank me that you are not in the poorhouse," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser.

"Never mind the poorhouse, but listen to me! There is just one chance of my recouping myself—just one chance. If you prevent me from taking this chance, nothing will be left to me but suicide. Mrs. Bowser, do you know that horseradish is selling at 25 cents a bottle, when it used to sell at five? All the doctors in the country are recommending it. lar. You could cut him up and smoke the meat and make it bring you about $12. Why, it was as easy as turning your hand over, but, no—no—no again! You said I would lose everything I put into it, and tonight you are facing the fact that bacon is 50 cents a pound, and your husband could have been worth $20,000,000 as well as not!"

"Mr. Bowser, what you always lacked was capital. You had no money to buy hogs nor to handle the meat, and you were going into the scheme without any experience. I advised you not to do it, and again you got mad and left the house. I think I saved your bacon, if you didn't go into bacon."

"Never mind my bacon, Mrs. Bowser! But for you I would be able to buy out half this town now, and it must be a great satisfaction to you to know it. We will take another case. When I saw that war was coming, which was before anyone else, I knew there would be a great demand for cucumber pickles to send to the soldiers. I wanted to get 5,000 acres of land and plant it all in cucumbers. I would thus raise enough to sell to the government at least ten carloads of cucumbers. The government would buy and pickle them. They would have paid me millions of dollars. I had everything worked out, even to the last cucumber, but I met your opposition, again. You began figuring on the cost of the seeds, the land, the cultivation, the gathering and selling, and you made out that I would lose about $10,000. What was the result, guilty woman! Why, cucumber pickles sold for a quarter apiece, and the government couldn't get enough of them at that price. Every soldier wanted his pickle, morning, noon and night, and some of them positively refused to fight without a pickle in their pockets. Ah, but how can you sit there so calm and cool, when you have worked such black ruin!"

SCOUTING SEAS • FOR ICEBERGS

Coast Guard Cutters Out to Safeguard Ocean Travel.

ARE MENACE TO NAVIGATION

Huge Floating White Castles of the North With Their Threatening Death-Dealing Portents Sometimes Wander as Far South as Such Sunny Climes as Lisbon in Portugal or the Shores of Delaware Bay—Some Rise 446 Feet Above Water.

Coast guard cutters have been scouting the North Atlantic all summer so passengers and crews of ships sailing in northern seas may sleep without fear that an iceberg will creep up on them in the night.

"These floating white castles of the North with their fantastic glamor and threatening, death-dealing portents sometimes wander down to latitude 38 degrees—as far south as such sunny climes as Lisbon in Portugal or the shores of Delaware Bay," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

"The icebergs which are to be seen during the early spring months in the Atlantic are great frozen fresh water glacier-ends which have broken loose from the ice fields of Greenland and floated with the current into warmer seas. 'They herd' quite often off the coast of Newfoundland. The warm waters of the northwestern coast of Europe keep them back on that side as far north as 70 degrees. There are few of them also in the North Pacific except near northeastern Asia. Monster Floating Palaces.

"Gorgeously tricked out in white that gleams and sparkles in the sunlight, these monster palaces push out from the great sheet of ice that covers Greenland. No architectural feat of the ancient Egyptians or of the Byzantines, or of a Sir Christopher Wren can compare with the Karnaks and hundreds of other temples which are carved in their sides by the agents of erosion. No marble possesses the rainbow-tints of their columns, and no man-made edifice has so fairlike, capricious, and bizarre a character. The whole gamut of blues and greens plays hide and seek over their surface, and sometimes in summer little cascades tumble over the sides to hide themselves in the waves. But their ghostlike emptiness and the chill of their breath make mariners shiver with dread.

"Most of the icebergs of the North Atlantic are pushed out from the west coast of Greenland between Disco Bay and Smith Sound or from the east coast south of 68 degrees latitude. Some of them are as much as 446 feet above the surface of the water, this being about one-sixth or one-seventh of their volume.

Debris Soon Lost.

"As they sail away they necessarily start with some of the debris which was originally in the bottom of the glacier. Much of this immediately falls to the bottom of the ocean, having melted its way out. Often they capsize or flop over on one side when the breaking or melting shifts their centers of gravity. The debris, when it is on the top quickly plows its way through the icebergs, having absorbed more of the heat of the sun than the ice does. When it is on the side it soon slides into the ocean. At any rate the debris seldom stays with the berg far on its journey. Nothing seems to mar the purity of the icebergs' exterior. They support little life, a minute worm and the simple microscopic algae, which gives a red color to snow, being their only inhabitants.

"The icebergs of the Antarctic regions are larger than those of the Arctic, but not so tall perhaps. They are portions of the enormous ice sheet around the South Pole, which break off in tabular blocks and float away as grim sentinels of the southern waters. One explorer reports that at one time he counted as many as sixty from the deck of his steamer, while more than that could be seen from his masthead.

"Like mighty derelicts, dwarfing our largest battleships into utter insignificance, their sides sometimes measuring from thirty to forty miles in length when they first break off from the Ross Barrier, they float out into the depths, where the warmer winds and seas eat out their very cores, undermine them, make them turn turtle, and finally break them up into smaller bergs and hard small chips called 'growlers.' The 'growlers' are as dangerous as the mother icebergs."

TRIPPED BY LORD'S PRAYER

"Person" Comes to Grief in a Chicago Court.

Allen Johnson in palpit coat and preacher make-up was charged with picking pockets in the colored Baptist convention. Jackson stoutly denied his guilt and claimed to be a delegate to the convention.

"Recite the Lord's prayer," said the court.

"That's easy," said Allen. "Give us this day our daily bread."

"Well," said the court.

"That's all of it," said Allen.

"Hold for the grand jury," ordered the judge.

DOVER CHANNEL SWIMMERS FAIL

Thousands of Unsuccessful Attempts Have Been Made.

WEBB FIRST TO TURN TRICK

Englishman Crossed From Dover to Calais in 1876, Covering the Distance in 21 Hours, 25 Minutes—In 1911 Burgess, After 18 Failures, Swam From South Foreland, Dover, to Le Chatelet in 22 Hours and 25 Minutes—Swimmers Fail.

The failure of Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., to swim the English channel on his fifth attempt recalls the efforts of swimmers from all corners of the world to accomplish the feat. Only twice in history has the rest-less stretch of water given way to the effort of aquatic stars. In 1876 Capt. Matthew Webb, an Englishman, crossed from Dover to Calais in 21 hours 25 minutes. He was favored by a light wind and a comparatively calm sea, actually swimming about thirty-two miles.

Distance is Twenty Miles. The distance across the channel at the narrowest point, Dover to Cape Gris Nez, a French headland in the Pas de Calais, is about 20 miles, but swimmers are compelled to zig-zag in combating the waves and tides.

The second successful attempt to cross the channel was made on September 6, 1911, by William T. Burgess, an Englishman by birth, but a naturalized Frenchman. Fifteen times previously he had attempted to make the perilous swim. On the sixteenth he swam from South Foreland, Dover to Le Chatelet, a little village two miles east of Cape Gris Nez, in 22 hours 25 minutes. He covered about 60 miles. Burgess' feat was considered even more wonderful than that of Captain Webb, in that he met with the most adverse conditions. In midchannel he was strung severely by jellyfish and became ill and was ready to abandon the swim. When but a short distance off the French coast he met the ebbing tides and battled for three hours before reaching slack water.

Two other men said to have accomplished the feat could not prove their claims. Capt. David Dalton of New York declared he swam the channel in August, 1890, covering 60 miles in 23 hours 30 minutes. He claimed to have swam the entire distance on his back. Sam Mahoney of Revere Beach, Mass., asserted that he swam from Sangatte, France, to South Foreland in September, 1908, but this was not proved.

Makes 21 Attempts. Jabez Wolfe, the veteran English swimmer, has made 21 unsuccessful attempts to cross and is planning another. In September, 1908, he arrived within eight of the Calais pier, but became ill and was taken from the water. He had been in the water 23 hours.

In August of 1905 James Mearns, the Scottish swimming champion, nearly lost his life in the swim. Montagu Holbein of England tried seven times to cross. In 1908 he arrived within a mile of Dover after swimming 22 hours 21 minutes, giving up because of exhaustion. Annette Kellerman, a native-born Australian, called the world's greatest woman swimmer, made several attempts without success.

Many others of lesser note have tried and failed.

RESCUES CHICKENS

Officer Took Them When They Were About to Be Swallowed.

A species of box constrictor which was being exhibited at a carnival at Portland, Ore., went hungry one day and a large crowd of spectators considered themselves somewhat out of pocket when Hemanth Officer Churchill broke up a hypnotism session and rescued two chickens—the snake's potential dinner.

The "barkers" had announced that the reptile—which is 30 feet long—was about to partake of its dinner by hypnotizing and later consuming two live chickens. The crowd flocked in and paid their money.

The hypnotic eye was just beginning to have its effect when Churchill got wind of the affair and boldly entered the enclosure, leaped into the arena, seized the two chickens, and left with one under each arm, leaving orders that the concretion would be seized if any more live chickens were offered the reptile.

MAN KILLED OWN BABY

Killed Two in Love Plot—Is No. Charged With Poisoning Daughter.

Another murder was laid to the door of W. T. Aven of Waco, Tex., when an analysis of the viscera of his five-month-old daughter showed that the infant died of poisoning. Aven was charged with the baby's death.

Aven is alleged to have committed two other murders in a plot to get rid of his wife and the husband of his niece so that he might marry her.

The preliminary trial of Aven has not yet been held. He was taken from the local jail to some unknown place to forestall any attempt of citizens to take the law into their own hands.

BASEBALL FACES SHORTAGE OF ASH

Must Find Substitute for Wood Now Used for Bats.

HIGH-GRADE MATERIAL SCARCE

An Attempt Has Been Made, to Introduce Hickory Bats as Substitute for Traditional Ash, but Without Success as Wood Is Too Heavy—Other Industries That Use Ash Are Finding Difficulty in Getting High-Grade Material—Laminated Bats Used.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
According to the United States Department of Agriculture, "Babe" Ruth and his associates who specialize in whalloping the horsehide out of the baseball grounds may well begin to ask what kind of bat they will use when the diminishing supplies of ash make it less easy for them to obtain this hitherto favorite material. During the last few years several sporting goods factories have attempted to introduce hickory bats as a substitute for the traditional ash. This has been unsuccessful, however, because hickory, although it possesses greater shock-absorptive qualities than ash, is too heavy.

Has 1,200 Bat Patterns.
One of the greatest curiosities at a leading bat factory is a model room where more than 1,200 bat patterns are kept on display. Each model embodies the individual likes and dislikes of the various players. There are thin bats, portly bats, heavy clubs, light bats, some with handles of unusual shape and design, and some with bodies that resemble bottles. Whenever a professional player orders a new consignment of bats, this factory is able to refer to the special model desired and to pattern the new bats after that particular design. The bats of the big league players are turned out by hand, great care and skill being employed in their production.

The majority of the white ash timber used in making baseball bats is cut from farm woodlots and timber tracts in Kentucky, Ohio, and the Lake and Lower Mississippi states. The timber is cut in the winter, logged, and hauled to the railroad, whence it is transported to the factories, a number of which are located at Louisville, Ky. The ash is cut up in bolt form, each bolt being ultimately converted into a finished bat. After arrival at the factory the bolts are stored in curing sheds for from several months up to a year, in order that the wood may season thoroughly. Skilled workmen ultimately work the bolts up into bats for all grades of ball players, from the stars of the big leagues to the sandlot champions and school players.

According to a standing timber survey made by the United States forest service at the request of congress, present ash resources aggregate approximately 9,988,000,000 board feet. For the most part, these ash assets are scattered over a wide range of woodlands, the ash trees being prevalent in mixed forests of hardwood timber. The Lower Mississippi states have about 3,182,000,000 board feet of ash on the stump at present, much of this supply being old timber. The Central states have about 2,929,000,000 board feet of ash while the Lake states have about 1,893,000,000 board feet, the South Atlantic and East Gulf states 1,256,000,000 board feet, the Middle Atlantic states 513,000,000 board feet, and the New England states, 215,000,000 board feet.

High-Grade Material Scarce.
Obviously if ash were used solely for the manufacture of baseball bats our leading national game would have no need to concern itself about substitutes for a long time to come. But the industries which use ash are already beginning to find it hard to obtain high-grade material in sufficient quantities to meet their needs, and its price prior to the recent slackening in industrial activity rose rapidly. The entire amount of ash used for sporting and athletic goods forms a very small part of the yearly consumption of this valuable wood, which possesses properties that give it prominence for several industries. In particular, the vehicle and handle industries have been fierce competitors for ash. Over half the annual cut goes into handles, vehicle parts, woodenware, and novelties.

Ash is unquestionably one of the woods in connection with which the effects of forest depletion will earliest be felt in the form of an actual dearth of material. There are two possible remedies to grow more ash, and to resort to substitutes. Already the search for substitutes has begun. As for growing more ash, foresters say that with the waning of the virgin supplies the farmer's woodlot is coming to play a larger and larger part in filling market need, and that farmers whose woodland is suitable for ash production will do well to favor this species.

Laminated Bats Successful.
The laminated or two or three-piece bat, originated and perfected by the United States forest service, also promises to exert a potential, conservative influence on the white-ash supplies necessary for the production of our best bats. Short pieces of material which otherwise would be worthless for bat construction can now be fitted and joined together with the same kind of waterproof glue that is used in making airplane propellers, so that the finished product is a baseball bat so resilient, springy, durable, and satisfactory as the complete variety. Field tests have demonstrated that the laminated bat lasts just as long and is as productive of home runs as the ordinary ash bats made of one piece of timber.

Majagua wood, which comes from Cuba, has been used to some extent during recent years in the making of baseball bats. This is a tight-grained, tough, tenacious, and springy wood, heavier than ash but otherwise not unlike this American timber that has demonstrated its superiority for bat making. Transportation difficulties, as well as trouble in harvesting an adequate annual supply of majagua wood in Cuba, have operated against the popularity of this new wood. Furthermore, baseball players are very conservative about changing their style and type of bats. They have long been accustomed to using ash bats, and the majority of the professional players will be very loath to accept a substitute.

ANGORA HAS PERFUME FAMINE

Turkish Women Drink Much Butter-milk as Substitute Beautifier.
One of the womanly war tragedies at Angora is the lack of perfumes. Turkish women preserve their beauty by frequent bathing, the use of oil perfumes after the bath and the drinking of buttermilk by the quart.
The war has reduced the manufacture of homemade perfumes and the nationalist government has forbidden the importation of foreign perfumes under the head of luxuries. To make the best of a bad situation, the women have increased their consumption of buttermilk.

IN THE NEGLIGEEES

Interesting Wearables for Fall and Winter Wear.

Newest Gown May Be Substituted for the Evening Dress Or Opera Coat.

Remnants of the attractive things now being manufactured for autumn and winter behind closed doors, and which will be brought out as surprises later on when the cool weather is here and every woman is feeling the need of adding to and replenishing her wardrobe, are not confined to suits and dresses. Interesting things are being done in the realm of negligees.

Negligees as they are made today might be placed in two general classifications—one of the dressing gown type, the other on the order of a dress. These of the latter sort, during the days when a wave of extravagance swept the whole world, became extremely elaborate and were considered as belonging among the luxuries.

Makers of such clothes showed themselves versatile and extremely clever when, with the passing of the spending debauch, they made this type of dress to fill more than one need and simplified it. Now for many occasions a negligee may take the place of a dress—especially an evening dress.

The beautiful negligees that resemble so closely handsome evening dresses or opera coats being made for the new season are lovelier than ever, but among them is seen a goodly showing of dressing gowns and kimonos in which beauty has been blended with utility.

There was a time when we felt that the good old-fashioned dressing gown made for comfort had receded into the distance. We may have sighed occasionally for its comfort on a cool autumn or winter morning, but remembrance of its plainness and unbecomingness solaced us for its loss.

Extremely attractive challis have been chosen for autumn models, and to make them even more pleasing soft silk linings of contrasting colors have been added.

FASHIONS IN WINTER FURS

Wide Diversity Shown in Styles of Peltry to Have Milady's Favor for Coming Season.

A passing glance at the fur garments displayed shows a wide diversity in style. There is no set fashion, even in silhouette. One wrap may have close fitting capes that form the long straight lines, while the next garment may be developed in wide, outstanding circular effects. There are many charming models and those built on the lines of a cape are popular. It is quite certain that there will be no difficulty in expressing individuality in the furs we wear next winter.

It is apparent that black fur garments will be especially favored. Handsome models in caracul, baby lamb, Hudson seal and astrakhan are plentiful. Next to black the gray furs will be in demand, so there are charming models in mole and squirrel. Of course, the beautiful mink coats and wraps will continue to be worn for evening functions.

A new fur which is a mixture of chinchilla and opossum is shown in trimmings and is also used in wraps in combination with fur fabrics. In neckpieces the animal skins seem to be the first choice. The pointed fox and fisher are being shown in large quantities, and there are handsome models in silk and white fox.

FOR MEDIUM SIZED WOMEN

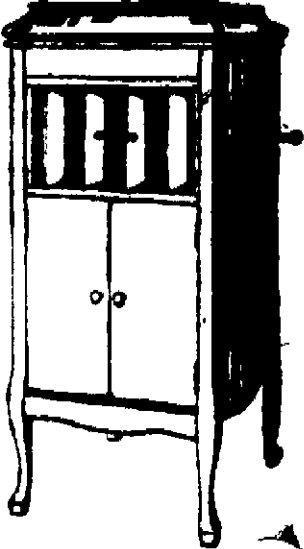

This little black velvet hat is not designed for tall women. Huge bows of black velvet, lined with white silk, constitute the trimming.

Feather Fans Are Large. The popular style for evening wear is the large feathered fan. They are on the market in quantities, and are made up of unusually large drooping feathers of bunches of six or seven. There is a tendency toward solid color effects, such as all greens and all purples.

The Autumn Hat. Nothing strikingly new has appeared in the shape of fall hats. Novelties, however, are in their coloring. There are beautiful, soft blues and many shades of red, such as those that verge on the raspberry tone and other rich tints touched with mauve.

"Worship." A colored man went to a Morris pho shop to make a payment on a loan and after looking through all of the pockets found the correct amount. COLONIAL A. C. HELD BANQUET

Thursday Evening at Pessenar's Summer Camp at Brodheads Bringing the Local Baseball Season to a Close—Players Received Checks for $875.

Closing the baseball season of 1921 with a record of winning thirty-five games, losing six and tying one, the Colonial Athletic Club under the leadership of City Judge Harry E. Schirick, captain and first baseman, wound up the team's affairs with a banquet at Joseph S. Pessenar's summer camp at Brodheads Thursday evening. Besides the members of the team there were a few invited guests who partook of the club's hospitality.

Mr. Pessenar, who conducts the well known hotel on Railroad Avenue, has recently purchased 148 acres of land overlooking the Ashokan reservoir and there he has erected a summer camp, and plans to erect a number of bungalows and also a big pavilion that will seat five hundred people comfortably.

When it was decided to wind up the season with a "blow out" the boys voted to meet with "Joe" Pessenar at his summer camp. The trip was made by automobile, leaving the Central Postoffice about 8 o'clock that evening.

When the boys arrived at the camp they found that a rousing fire awaited them in the banquet hall, one end of which was taken up by a huge fire place, which threw off a blaze of heat and light from the huge logs that were piled high on the fire. It was a chilly night and the cheery fire was welcomed after the auto ride, and the boys gathered around the fire place and sang and joked until it was time to serve the banquet.

Minor Host Joe is a well known baseball fan, and he outdid himself to please the ball players, who through their brilliant work have won the undisputed championship of the Hudson river valley, and he served the following fine menu:

Fruit Salad
Lobster Cocktail
Cream of Celery Soup
Baked Blue Fish St. Julian Potatoes
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Chicken A La Maryland
Sweet Potatoes
Green Peas

Asparagus
Apricot Ice Cream
Home Made Pumpkin Pie
Coffee
Cigars

After the menu had been stowed away under the vests of the boys, who showed they could eat as well as they could play, Judge Schirick, who has led the team through the victorious season just closed, thanked the boys for their excellent work and fine support the past season, and said that he hoped that in 1922 they would be able to gather together again and play the game as successfully as they had during the season just closed. He then presented each player with a check for $275, which represented the balance left in the club treasury after all bills had been paid. The boys had been paid during the season after each game with the understanding that if there was a surplus when the season closed it would be divided among the team.

The fact should be stated here, however, that Judge Schirick for his services as captain and player of the team worked without compensation having given his services free of charge.

Following the distribution of the checks, Harold L. Van Deusen on behalf of the club presented Manager Louis Brown, Secretary Edward Scherer and Captain Harry E. Schirick with tokens of appreciation from the boys of the team. Mr. Van Deusen in presenting the tokens said that he wanted to congratulate the boys on their successful season and that Kingston's baseball public were proud of the Colonials, who had established a record that had never been equalled. Messrs Brown, Scherer, and Schirick responded thanking the boys for their unexpected gifts.

Then, presiding as toastmaster, Mr. Van Deusen called on every member of the team and the guests present for a few remarks, and every one responded. The press was represented by P. J. Beichert, sporting writer of the Leader, and Nathan G. Markson, who covered the Colonial games for The Freeman. Dr. John O'Leary represented the fans, and said that he was glad of the opportunity to again meet with the boys.

Following the "speeches" stunts were in order and the Colonial Klanteite, composed of Messrs. C. J. Connors, Cliff Moore, Pete Jordan and Kid Moore, developed some close harmony that showed that they had been rehearsing for the event.

While Dick Bruck, the efficient waiter, was passing the cigars Sam Aaron and Cliff Moore entertained with songs and jokes, and one of the hits of the evening was a duet by Bud Culliton and Sam Aaron. Every one knew Sam could sing, but Bud sprang the surprise of the evening.

Gathered around the blazing fire place while the remains of the banquet were cleared off the boys spent the remainder of the time with songs, close harmony, jokes and good natured chaff. Incidentally it might be well to say that Art Rice and Cy Connors, the veteran players in point of years of service, were given a round of cheers when they were called on to speak. An effort to induce Art Rice to sing failed, however, and he said that he was willing for Cy to help himself to the singing honors, and take it from those who heard him. Cy was there. Natty Deegan had his hands full grooming the Klanteite for their singing specialty.

At an early hour this morning the party broke up with the boys expressing that they would be able to again gather around Minor Host Joe's banquet board at the close of the 1922 season.

Science wins again

You want the Vitamine in Yeast

Here it is—in a tiny tablet

THOUSANDS of almost miraculous cures and countless ailments heretofore considered incurable have yielded to Vitamines that new found element in food so often destroyed by modern cooking.

Babies grow fat, strong, robust, when given the Vitamines in orange juice each day, in addition to milk. . . . Children show astonishing improvement when fed a quart of milk daily in addition to their meals.

Adults need even more Vitamines, yet a meal of Roast Beef, Baked Potatoes, Bread and Butter, Apple Dumpling with hard sauce and coffee fails to satisfactorily nourish the body for lack of Vitamines. You weaken, lack disease resistance, fall heir to countless minor ills—all easily banished with the wonderful Vitamines.

The Gift of Science to You

Now comes a highly concentrated tablet containing a proper dose of "Vitamin B" from yeast; Fat Soluble "A" "Vitamin" from Rice Hulls, combined with Glycerophosphates, Cascarine and Capsicum—A tablet easily taken, in ideal form, very economical and results most unusual, when taken in addition to regular diet.

SMALLPOX INCREASES WHERE LAWS ARE LAX

United States Health Service Gives Results of Investigations Just Made.

The increase in the prevalence of smallpox in the United States during recent years has been marked and definite, according to a statistical investigation just completed by John N. Forney and Dr. James P. Leake of the United States public health service. There has been an extraordinary increase of smallpox on the Pacific coast, the results of the investigation show. In the last three years the cases per thousand inhabitants have increased from 0.16 to 2.38. Figures for the Central and Southern states, in spite of fluctuations, show that there has been a decided upward tendency in the prevalence of smallpox, although the central states maintain a level almost twice as high as that of the southern states. The eastern states have had a remarkably constant rate of smallpox during the period from 1916 to 1920, and there has been little deviation from an average rate of 0.04 cases per thousand. Twenty representative states, including the District of Columbia, were considered in the investigation. Of these states New York with 0.025 cases per thousand of population, had the lowest rate, while Kansas with 2.00 cases had the highest.

In addition to determining from the official figures the prevalence of smallpox, the investigation showed that the increase of the disease varied with the laxity in the enforcement of vaccination laws.

"It is evident that smallpox in this country is dependent on the popular vote," the report says. "In general, the people obey laws which they have made. If popular sentiment in a state is behind a strong centralized compulsory vaccination act, smallpox is negligible in that state. If local authorities are given discretionary powers in the matter of vaccination enforcement, the rate tends to rise, even in the most favored sections of the country, whereas in the absence of compulsory features in the law, or where there is no law at all, smallpox reaches a high rate."

She recently graduated from the law school of the University of Southern California and will practice law in Los Angeles. Miss Buck is grandniece of James Monroe, fifth President of the United States, her grandfather being Spencer Monroe, brother of the former President. She is also a collateral relative of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

HIGH SCHOOL VS. NEWBURGH OCT. 15

The high school varsity football team had a strenuous tussle with the second team Wednesday afternoon in an impromptu game. Coach Gault decided that in lieu of the regular routine practice a variety of rough mix-up would offer diversion to both squads and display various weaknesses. The second team is to play its own games if games can be scheduled. Equipment has arrived from them which has tickled them immensely. The game was quite an experience for the scrubs as a referee and all formalities of regulation play were in evidence. Prospects for 1922 football are bright already for the material in the scrubs is vibrant with real football pep and most of the scrubs will be in school next year. As for the varsity, squad inexperience will be the hue and cry of the fans next year, for only a few of the regulars are to be graduated in June. Saturday the team will be pitted against Newburgh who is reported to be going very strongly. In last Saturday's game against Middletown the Hill City players scored 2 points to their opponents' 7 which was a very good. Middletown always plays clean hard football and her players are very strong. The "safest" gained by Newburgh is certainly a star in her crown. Colvin is working well in the back field but he has a tendency to fumble at a critical moment. However, he has shown ability and his driving at present reminds us of Greenport's coming out in 1919. Although the game in Saratoga was not given away and the struggle was bitter throughout Coach McNamee is afraid of over confidence in the Newburgh game. Saturday's game is the first of the season games to be played and the details have all been arranged for well in advance.

"CLEAN UP SQUAD" IS DELAYED

The "Clean Up Squad" sent out through the country by the U. S. Veterans' Bureau will not be in Kingston on October 15th and 17th as first announced.

They will be here on October 28th and 29th.

The change in date was made necessary on account of the vast amount of unexpected work the squad found in the first places they visited.

Any ex-service man having any claim against the government on account of his service in the army, navy or marine corps can appear before this squad at the armory on the dates mentioned and have his claim put in proper form.

RIFTON.

Rifton, Oct. 13.—The Rev. Kerr will preach at Rifton and Plutarch next Sunday. Rifton 11 a. m., Plutarch, 2 p. m. Subject of sermon, "The Life That Is Life Indeed." Dr. George W. Grinton, district superintendent, will preach at Plutarch October 22-30.

The Craze for "Antique." Spurious "antique" furniture may be of any one of three kinds; a piece made up of bits of antique carving, panels, and so forth; a real antique to which carvings or inlays have been added; or a piece that is only a copy. It is extremely difficult for an amateur to detect a clever imitation, especially if it belongs to one of the first two classes. Then why buy antiques? It is all a matter of taste; many old things have a beauty that time alone can give, though new things of good design and construction are just as useful and sometimes just as attractive. One thing is certain; a genuine antique of real quality is expensive. Perhaps the greatest pleasure for the ordinary person in buying antiques is that he has to buy one piece at a time and that one only after thinking it over carefully.—Youth's Companion.

RESOLUTIONS OF GRAND JURY

Before adjourning and reporting to county court, the Ulster county grand jury which handed up indictments and dismissals of complaints to Judge Fowler several days ago adopted the following report and recommendations, which were filed with the court:

"The grand jury of Ulster county at the September term of the county court, having finished their work, desire to make the following report and recommendations to the county court:

"First. We respectfully report that we have visited and inspected the county jail and find the said jail in excellent condition as regards cleanliness, sanitation, care and condition of prisoners, etc., and wish to compliment the sheriff of Ulster county and his assistants on their excellent care of county property and the prisoners entrusted to their charge. In the course of this inspection it developed that the electric switches controlling the lights in the jail proper are decidedly in need of repair and it is therefore respectfully recommended that the proper steps be taken to have the necessary repairs made at the earliest possible moment as the present condition of some of these switches constitutes an actual source of danger to the jail attendants.

"Second. We wish to take this opportunity of voicing our respect and admiration for the district attorney of Ulster county, Frederick G. Traver, who has had complete charge of all work appearing before us. Always a gentleman, bringing to the office which he holds a high degree of personal ability as well as professional training and experience, we feel that this county is to be congratulated upon its choice for this important office and hope that his term of office may be long.

"Third. We further wish to add a word of appreciation of the work of the grand jury stenographer, William Glass, who has done much to aid us by his faithful and efficient efforts.

"C. S. LOWTHER, Foreman.
"THOS. J. O'Hara, Clerk."

Miss Florence Ogden and Miss Alice Reeves of Poughkeepsie, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. E. M. Shultis here. Mrs. I. B. Hare who has been here for the past week, will stay until next week.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Oct. 13.—On Monday evening, a very pleasant surprise party assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pine, it being Mrs. Pine's birthday, and although there was no large cake containing candles for each year of life's journey, there was an abundance of smaller cakes with sandwiches and coffee. After a social hour the visitors were entertained by music on the piano by Miss Teresa Nichols. Then several solos by Miss Cronan. All wishing Mrs. Pine many more years of health and happiness, returned to their homes.

J. B. Davis, our village carpenter, who has just completed building a new extension to the terrace in front of the post office for Mr. Locke, is now engaged in making repairs to Harry Sayer's residence on Lasher avenue.

James Kelder is building an addition on his barn to be used for a carriage house. Freer and Keator were the carpenters.

Several parties at this place are contemplating improvements to their properties this fall, painting, calkings, building, etc.

Y.

BUSINESS MEN WANT MUCH

Some Qualities That Applicant for a Job Had to Show in a Character Test.

A New Yorker who, for reasons of delicacy, must be nameless, was recently gratified with a tempting offer of employment.

The firm which sought his services required from him a scientific character reading by an expert. He was referred to a local psycho-analyst retained by the concern.

The expert rated him high on latent ability, but deficient in the essential business qualities of "self-esteem and selfishness."

He did not get the job, says Leslie's. "Sorry," he was told, "but your character shows there isn't enough iron in your makeup."

Ho, for the good old days when a mean man was still an "ornery cuss" and generosity was yet respectable. Time was when a man's kindness recommended him for a job and gave him reasonable hopes of advancement. Now, a growing number of employers insist that his worth be weighed in advance with a pair of scientific scales and weighed with a machinist's micrometer. And now to him if the acute psycho-analyst discerns in him a tendency to meanness or human sympathy! He suffers the heartening business riles of modesty and unselfishness!

How deeply, we wonder, have the doctrines of these latter-day prophets penetrated the collective business mind of the country at large? Most the model citizen who lives dutifully on a Sunday morning to a sermon on the brotherhood of man hurry home to a learned treatise on how to despise his neighbor?

What a theme for G. R. Chesterton or Nietzsche!

Grasshoppers as Food.
Grasshoppers are a staple article of the food markets in Arabia, Syria, Egypt and Madagascar, and when roasted or fried in butter, with a little parsley, are said to be delicious, according to the Detroit News. The nimble grasshopper is a vegetarian; he lives in the sun and his flesh when cooked is white and delicate. In the oriental countries, where it is appreciated, the little creatures are prepared for export by being dried in the sun or preserved in brine.

Violin Wood.
The value of a violin is in the sound producing qualities of the wood used in making it. Wood consists of fibers which may be compared to strings either parallel or interlaid. Most of those of spruce are parallel hence their fine musical quality. Most other woods have shorter fibers and they may not be arranged so they can vibrate freely, one later lag with another.
